Not illustrated. 1911 Excerpt: . . . and to errors committed by the personnel, two successive rounds rarely, if ever, fall in exactly the same place. In practice this means that the trajectories of a number of projectiles fired under as nearly as possible the same conditions do not coincide, but form a cone about the mean trajectory as an axis. This cone is called the sheaf of fire, the ground section of which is an ellipse, with the longer axis in the direction of the range. In determining the accuracy of a gun at any given range and under any special conditions a number of shots are fired under the given conditions. The firing is done in such manner as to make the circumstances governing all rounds as nearly alike as possible, and the point of fall of each shot is plotted, usually with reference to the assumed origin. The coordinates x...
