Excerpt from Creamery Cold Storage Mechanical refrigeration is indispensable where low temperatures are required, as in a modern cold storage warehouse, and it may be employed with advantage in creameries having a large output of butter. For small or medium sized creameries, however, the first cost of installation, and the annual expense of Operation, put the mechanical system out of the question. For that reason a great majority of the creameries in Canada will continue to use ice as a refrigerant. The two systems of ice storages most generally used at Canadian creameries are known as the Air Circulation System and the Cylinder System.
