Excerpt from Memoirs of Ralph Vansittart: A Member of the Parliament, of Canada, 1861-1867 Living near us was my uncle, Colonel Ralph Vansittart, for whom I was named. he was a bachelor of about 50 years of age, and had been induced, through his affection for my father, to purchase the adjoining farm, when he retired from the army after the Crimean war. When a young man, and before entering the army, he had an old-fashioned tutor, passionately fond of botany, who found in my uncle an apt pupil, and even before entering at Woolwich had made of him a fair field botanist, familiar with all the common English flowers, and, indeed, the flora generally of his neighbourhood. His army life for a long period put an end to his favorite pursuit, but once he settled down upon a Canadian farm, his old pastime was taken up with renewed avidity. No sooner had the warm spring rains and south winds driven off the winter frosts and snow, than my uncle, in an old suit of corduroy, could be seen, with knapsack on shoulder, trudging over the fields and through the woods after the first floweret that pushed its gentle head above the ground.
